kind messages.

I said all sectional animosity-had subsided; I will go a step farther and assert that the true soldiers never cherished personal enmity towards each other. It was principle that impelled them to hid adieu to home and the loved ones there, and go forth to battle and if need be to die for what each conceded that both parties were actuated by honest convictions, and when the matter was settled by the arbitrament of the sword, realizing that this was to be an undivided country. The veterans of the South returned to peaceful pursuits and their hearts gradually warmed lome, and Gen. Wheaten has taken command the birgade.

The Philippine Commissioners, J. G. Schurman, Charles Denby, D. C. Worcester, Admiral George Dewey, and Gen. E. S. Otis, representing the people of the Army, issued a proclamation, which was distributed broadcast to the Filipinos, assuring the people of the good will entertained for them by the President and the American people, and stating that their well-being is the aim of the American Government. "The President and the American people, and stating that their well-being is the aim of the American Government. "The President and the American people, and the American people, and that the supremacy of the United States to the thing about the desired state of things, declaring that the supremacy of the United States will be enforced throughout by the assurance of peace and order, by the guarantee of civil and religious liberty, by the establishment of justice, by the cultivation of letters, science and the liberal and practical arts, by the enlargement of intercourse with forcign nations, by expansion of industrial pursuits, by and their hearts gradually warmed towards the Old Flag, until now we claim that our love for that flag and devotion to our Government is as sincere and abiding as that of any other section of the country.

It is true that at various times politicians of both sections have endeavored to inflame the populace by frantically waving the bloody shirt to further their own selfish designs, but the time for that is now past. When the illustrious names of a Grant and a Lee, a Wilson and a Wheeler are linked together, wearing the same uniform, and the sons of veterans of the Blue and Gray march side by side carrying Old Glory to victory, whether in the mountains of Cuba, the jungles of the Philippines or upon the ocean's wave, no one can longer doubt that we are a united people. Let us be done with this talk about the North and the South, and let the people, the common people, the old soldiers of both sides, leading, if need be, unite and forever put the brand of infamy upon the party or the man who for selfish purposes would again attempt to estrange our people and array them against each other.

A grand destiny awaits our country, the grandest the world ever saw or dreamed of. With a territory extending from ocean to ocean, from the lakes to the gulf, embracing every climate and production and teeming with a population of 70,000,000 of the most intelligent and the freest people in the world, who can prophesy what our future may not be, or set a limit to our Death of the Last Member of the Supreme Court of the War Period. growth?

WITH WASHINGTON VOLUNTEERS. Interesting Letter Written Before Fighting Began.

The following is taken from a letter written by C. G. Mihills. Co. D. 1st Wash , to his mother, residing in Evansville, Wis, and shows the condition of affairs prevailing around Manila before active fighting commenced. The letter is dated into the yard of a very large convent The sisters said they 'Never allowed men within the walls,' but Captain said he guessed we would go in, if we had to break down the gate. They opened up at that, and we stood in a shed until Gen King rode in and ordered us under the porch of the convent. They expected an attack at daybreak, and we were supposed to be in ambush, but I think that the insur gents knew we were there. Everything was quiet, and at 10 a, m, we marched back, about as wet and dirty as mud and water could make us,

"Monday we dried out, and yesterday I was on what is known as Cossack guard. My post was on a little river bank in a rice field, water up to my knees, and orders to shoot at anything suspicious on the other bank or in the river. I came very near shooting at shadows twice in the night; it was moonlight, but cloudy, and a person could see all kinds of things. At one time if it had not lightened I should have blazed away for sure. It gets out to cold early in the pressure. gets quite cold early in the morning, and when we get wet through we feel pretty chilled, but I did not even catch cold.

The weather here now is very like August at home, only a little more min.

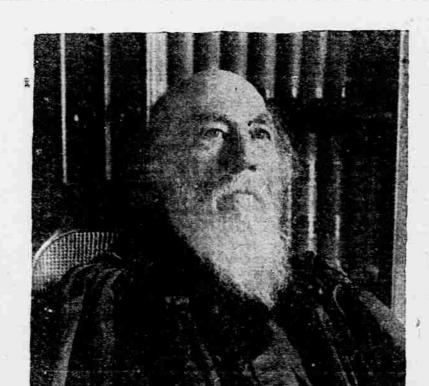

"It is surprising how little is knewn about these islands, not even the number in the group, let alone the area. Some of the smaller islands are said to be the inchest but it is next to increasible to find the smaller islands are said to be the richest, but it is next to impossible to find out anything about them. I think there is a great chance here for lumber and sawmills. All the lumber sold here is whip-sawed by Chinese, and sells for $40, Mexican, for common. Almost everything is on about the same plan. It is next to impossible to buy white sugar here. I bought a pound of stuff they call sugar, but it is not as good as the poorest sugar, but it is not as good as the poorest grade in the States; paid 15 cents, Mexi-can. The fruit here is poor and rather high. About the finest thing we get is nocolate, at 10 cents, Mexican, a cup.

"If it ever comes to a fight there will be exciting times here, for there are about 300,000 natives in the city, and we would be shot at from every house and wall. The natives all think they are great fighters with knives, but I don't they can fight with anything. When on outpost their guard is often within 30 feet of us, and whenever there is anyone watching they take out their knives and watching they take out their knives and fence with them, but from what I could see, they have but two cuts and a thrust. One of our cavalry would be a match for three or four. Our soldiers kill about three or four a week on outposts and guardhouses. The boys have good luck; whenever they shoot they seem to get their man. But in spite of this the insurgents think we are afraid of them, and say that they will drive us into the sea when they get ready."

I am profoundly grateful for, and have endeavored to reply to, each of these veteran's letters, but if I have failed in any instances, I assure the writers it was not intentional nor from any want of appreciation of their kind messages.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE STEPHEN J. FIELD.

Stephen J. Field, Associate Justice or the Supreme Court of the United States, retired, died at his home in Washington last Sunday evening. He was born in Haddam, Conn., in 1816, and was one of four brothers who attained eminence in various ways—David Dudley, Cyrus W., Stephen J., and Henry M. The last-named is now the only survivor. Justice Field's sister having married a missionary to Turkey, young Field went to Smyrna to live with her, and there acquired a knowledge of Oriental languages. Returning, he graduated from Williams College, in 1837, studied law, and in 1849 migrated as proven by the late war, and we can rest assured that the American flag will ever have strong arms and willing hearts to uphold it.

In conclusion let me say that I will the Court of th ever cherish the memory of the friendof the Court on many of the political questions that came before the Court. This was ships which have been formed through cases, and the Hayes-Tilden contest. In the latter he was one of the Democratic Justice the instrumentality of THE NATIONAL who were members of the Electoral Commission. In 1880 he received 65 votes in the TRIBUNF, and may I not hope that Democratic Convention at Cincinnati for the nomination for President. When Chief some corner, at least, in the hearts of Justice Waite died he confidently expected that President Cleveland would appoint him Chief Justice, and he never forgave Cleveland that he selected Melville W. Fuller instead. Consequently, though he had earned his retirement, he would not retire during Cleveland's incumbency, and give him the chance to make another appointment. Dec. 1, 1897, he placed his application for retirement in the hands of President McKinley.

A notable event in his career was the death of his old-time antagonist, David S. Terry of California. Justice Field had decided adversely the case of the notorious Sarah Althea Hill for a share in the great estate of Sharon, as his widow, and she became very bitter against him. This bitterness was shared by Terry, who had been her attorney, and then married her. In the carly days of California, Terry had been in the habit of killing those who seriously differed from him, or stood in his way, and he made such threats against Field that a Deputy Marshal, named David Nagle, was detailed to accompany and protect the aged jurist. In 1889 Terry ran across Field in 2 railway cating-house at Lathrop, Cal., and started at him with a knife, when Nagle shot him dead. Nagle was acquitted.

Justice Field rendered 1,042 decisions and opinions while on the bench-620 on the Supreme Bench, 57 in the Circuit Courts, and 365 while on the Supreme Bench of California. He had lived for the past 25 years at 21 First street N. E., a historic house, known during the war as Old Capitol Prison. It was used as the Capitol after the destruction of the Capitol by the British, in 1814, until the latter could be rebuilt. President Monroe was inaugurated there. The adjoining building was occupied by Mrs. Condit-Smith, sister of Mrs. Field, and widow of the Quartermaster-General of the Army of the Tennessee, "Our headquarters got information that to the state of war in the islands trade necessarily has been restricted. On April 8 Maj.-Gen. Lawton began an advance upon the Filipino army south of Manila. His expedition consists of 1.500 picked men and three army gunboats. The troops are selected from the 4th Cav., the 14th Inf. (Regulars), and North Dakota, Idaho and Washington volunteers. All these men are tried fighters, have been in any number of engagements, and an aggressive campaign may be expected. Gen. Lawton's first objective point is the southeast shore of the Laguna Lake.

SAMOAN AFFAIRS.

The German Foregin Office gave out an interview on April 8, in which it was stated that "the three powers have reached a decision to send a joint commission delegated to establish the responsibilities and report whether all or which of the Consuls at Apia should be which of the Consuls at Apia should be recalled. Consequently we do not attach any importance to the newest happenings in Samoa, which must have occurred if the idea of a commission had not been accepted. The dispatches show that a state of affairs prevails which is contrary to the Samoan act. We have therefore wired the German Ambassadors at London and Washington to inform the Cabinets at their respective posts that this is nets at their respective posts that this is our standpoint, and we protest against the actions of the British and American officers, and repeat that if Consul Rose encouraged Matanta's resistance he ex-ceeded his instructions. The German member of the commission has not yet been selected, but we shall send a man vho is eminently conciliatory, for we are determined to make peace."

The negotiations between the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, Baron von Buelow; the United States Ambassador, Andrew D. White, and the British Am-bassador, Sir Frank C. Lescelles, con-tinue. The representative of Great Britain still favors the majority rule within the proposed Samoan investigation commission, Germany wants unan-imity, according to the Berlin act, and the United States acquiesces in the latter.

In an interview Admiral Kautz at Apia said he considers he was insulted by Herr Rose, in issuing the counter proclamation that resulted in a clash of arms. The natives were obeying his command to natives were obeying his command to retire to their homes when the German proclamation was issued.

GOMEZ TO THE FRONT.

The Cuban Assembly on April 4 voted to disband the army and to dissolve. The muster-rolls were left in the possession of the executive committee of the Assembly, who will facilitate the preparation of copies for Gov.-Gen. Brooke. The army question is considered settled. The news was received here with gratification and relief. The prolonged struggle over the payment for the Cuban army had begun to exhaust the patience of the authorities. The Administration looks for more rapid progress in the work of reconstruction of the island and less difficulty in insti-tuting reforms generally. On April 8 the Cuban Generals commanding the forces met and elected Gen. Maximo Gomez Commander-in-Chief of the Cuban army in the Provinces of Havana, Pinar del Rio, Matanzas, and Santa Clara. Gen. Gomez conferred with Gen. Brocke. A dispatch from Havana declares that Gomez will take up his program of soliditying the Cuban people into a party that shall, without ceasing, urge the United States to withdraw from the island. His purpose is to make the people seem to have but one emotion, one desire—the thought of independence and of absolute separation from the United States.
